IBMA Memberships

Professional

Organizations or Individuals whose activity in the industry is to further its reach to new people and heighten the appreciation for bluegrass, qualify for professional membership in IBMA. Even positions that are strictly volunteer, such as leaders of a regional bluegrass association or a broadcaster donating his/her time at their local station to do a radio show - those activities are working towards efforts to support bluegrass. These folks right on up to (and including) the artists or companies who earn all or part of their living in the industry can be identified as "professionals".
