Bluegrass In Schools

Like jazz and blues, bluegrass is an excellent style of music for teaching improvisational skills. Perhaps more so than most other genres, bluegrass music connects students to a larger, multi-generational and international community of musicians and fans who love the music. Learning to play a bluegrass instrument is usually a life skill?something a student will continue to do for a number of years after he or she has left high school music programs.

The Bluegrass in the Schools program includes

- A 68-minute educational DVD, Discover Bluegrass: Exploring American Roots Music, complete with downloadable lesson plans for each of six units, targeting students age 8-13 (available at $3.00, for educational purposes) *newly updated!
- Teacher Workshops held in conjunction with major bluegrass festivals across the country, to give educators the tools to utilize bluegrass music in the classroom.
- Matching $200 mini-grants to help fund live (band), educational presentations of bluegrass music for students.
- A variety of programs implemented by our members in local schools?including bluegrass camps and workshops at festivals, after-school bluegrass clubs, artist in residency programs in which a bluegrass band works with orchestra students who already play stringed instruments, special bluegrass-related lesson plans and units (in all content areas), and live educational presentations from touring bands at school assemblies
- An online Bluegrass in the Schools implementation Manual
- A Bluegrass Lesson Plan Competition with award-winning lesson plans posted on bluegrassfoundation.org for free use by teachers
- Regional Bluegrass in the Schools Workshops for Artists interested in developing in-school bluegrass presentations.
