IBMA Bluegrass Music Hall of Fame

The IBMA Bluegrass Music Hall of Fame is an institution devoted to the recognition of noteworthy artists, performing groups, and industry leaders for their outstanding contributions to bluegrass music. Founded in 1991 in conjunction with the Bluegrass Music Hall of Fame & Museum in Owensboro, Kentucky, the Hall of Fame pays tribute to the pioneers of the music and the people who have made the music great. Induction into the Hall of Fame is the highest honor given by the IBMA.

Eligibility

Only people or performing groups are eligible for induction into the Hall of Fame. Companies, institutions, publications, radio stations, and other organizations – many of which significantly foster bluegrass music – are not eligible for Hall of Fame recognition. Eligible people and musical groups may include:

- Individuals such as performing artists, songwriters, music business executives, promoters, and broadcasters. It is permitted to include multiple individuals simultaneously under one induction when those individuals are part of an influential collaboration. Examples might include musical duos, songwriting partners, record label owners, or similar collaborations. Hall of Fame recognition is given to the individual(s).

- Performing groups that present exclusively as a “band,” without a named headlining personality. Hall of Fame recognition is given to the performing group as an entity, not to any of its individual members, and regardless of band configuration or time period.
Categories

Open Category

Two inductions are selected annually for the Hall of Fame Open Category. Eligible candidates may be living or deceased and may include performing artists, bands, and industry professionals.

Early Contributor Category

One induction is selected during odd-numbered years for the Hall of Fame Early Contributor Category. Eligible candidates may be living or deceased and should include performing artists, bands, and industry professionals who first came to prominence at least 50 years prior to the induction year.

Non-Performer Category

One induction is selected during even-numbered years for the Hall of Fame Non-Performer Category. Eligible candidates may be living or deceased and should include those whose primary contributions to bluegrass music are apart from performing.

Criteria

Candidates for the Hall of Fame shall be appraised by the Nominating Committee and Panel of Electors in accordance with the criteria below.

1. Basic Standard - Candidates should be judged according to their contribution to the advancement of bluegrass music and the indelibility of that impact.

2. Individuals Versus Performing Groups – Nomination of a performing band may take priority over its individual band members, unless the contributions of an individual band member to the greater whole of bluegrass music greatly overshadows the influence of the band. The Nominating Committee is encouraged to wait three years after a band induction before individual band members may be again eligible for the Hall of Fame. Exceptions may be made at the discretion of the Nominating Committee.

3. Scope of Activity - Candidates may have excelled in a specific sphere such as songwriting, publishing, performing, recording, or producing; or they may have been active in several areas. Regardless of their focus, candidates must have achieved definitive leadership in their field(s) and must compete with all candidates in all fields.
4. Span of Influence - The time factor of a candidate's impact on bluegrass music is completely flexible (except as provided for the Early Contributor Category). It may cover an uninterrupted span of many years or it may cover two or more distinct and separate time cycles. A candidate may earn Hall of Fame recognition by one transient act, momentary in time, providing the impact on bluegrass music is deemed significant enough. Longevity of involvement with bluegrass music, therefore, will not in itself warrant recognition in the Hall of Fame.

5. Influence on Others – Inspirational effect on others is a most significant criterion in evaluating candidates; the degree to which their influence is multiplied through others to create an impact on bluegrass music far beyond direct individual contribution.

Hall of Fame Nominating Committee

The Hall of Fame Nominating Committee is comprised of ten IBMA Professional Members, appointed by the IBMA Executive Committee, who are knowledgeable about the history of bluegrass music and the people who have shaped the art form. The IBMA Board Chairperson and/or IBMA Executive Director will serve as facilitator(s) and ex-officio non-voting member(s) of the Hall of Fame Nominating Committee.

Nominating Committee members serve one three-year term. At the discretion of the IBMA Board Chair, a member may participate on two consecutive terms before rotating off for at least one term. Committee members with conflicts of interest are recused from the nomination process. Committee members are ineligible for Hall of Fame consideration during their tenure. The identity of Committee members and their deliberations are to remain confidential.

The Nominating Committee should consider candidates known to the committee members as well as those suggested from sources including but not limited to public letters of recommendation forwarded from the Executive Director, review of candidates from previous years, and discourse from within the industry.

Hall of Fame Panel of Electors

The Hall of Fame Panel of Electors is comprised of no fewer than two hundred IBMA Professional Members, appointed by the IBMA Executive Committee, who are known to the industry as respected and accomplished participants in bluegrass music for at least ten years. Electors may include Nominating Committee members, IBMA Officers and Directors, and Board Members. Electors are expected to cast votes in all rounds of balloting annually to remain in good standing. Electors are responsible to review all Hall of Fame nominations and choose recipients based on published criteria by majority vote. The identity of Electors and their votes are to remain confidential.

Nomination Process

The Hall of Fame Nominating Committee will deliberate and vote to nominate fifteen candidates for the Open Category and ten candidates for the rotating category, either Early Contributor or Non-Performer, that will appear on the annual election ballots for voting by the IBMA Panel of Electors. Nominees for this slate will be chosen by merit alone, irrespective of whether they are living or deceased, currently active or inactive, and irrespective of activity category. Deceased persons must have been dead one year prior to nomination. Nominations will be guided by the Hall of Fame Criteria.

Panel of Electors Balloting Process

A first ballot with fifteen candidates for the Open Category and ten candidates for the rotating category, either Early Contributor or Non-Performer, will be sent to the Panel of Electors, who then vote to narrow the candidate pool. Electors will be guided by Hall of Fame Criteria and brief objective biographies of each nominee. Every vote will be collected, interpreted, and tabulated by an independent and reputable accounting firm. In the event there is a tie for the fifth finalist for the Open Category, or a tie for the third finalist in the rotating category, either Early Contributor or Non-Performer, each of those tied candidates will be included in the second ballot.

A second ballot with five finalists for the Open Category and three finalists for the rotating category, either Early Contributor or Non-Performing, will be sent to the Panel of Electors, who then vote to select the inductees for that year. Every vote will be collected, interpreted, and tabulated by an independent and reputable accounting firm. There will be no runoff vote in the event of a tie. Any candidates who are tied for the winning vote within a category will be inducted into the Hall of Fame.

A permanent plaque will be displayed in the Bluegrass Music Hall of Fame & Museum.
